Three Strikes Against Terror; Soufan's Career Captured in Bestseller

by Dennis Miller

As the graduating senior walked across the Mansfield University stage in 1994, no one, especially himself, had an inkling that he would become probably the most successful anti-terrorist agent in FBI history, retire, create an international security firm and coauthor a bestselling book.

All before the age of 40.

In The Black Banners: The Inside Story of 9/11 and the War Against al-Qaeda, Ali Soufan recounts that his VP for Student Affairs Joe Maresco suggested he apply to the FBI after graduation. He followed the advice, not sure he was serious, and was surprised when he was accepted. His talents were soon recognized by FBI officials. When the USS Cole was bombed in October 2000, Soufan was assigned to the investigation team.

Allan J. Golden Named Interim President

The Board of Governors of the Pennsylvania State System of Higher Education (PASSHE) appointed Allan J. Golden interim president of Mansfield University, effective December 18.

Golden, who has been interim vice president for finance and administration at Mansfield since February, 2010 will serve as interim president until a permanent president is hired. A search committee will be appointed by the university's Council of Trustees to identify and interview potential candidates. The Board of Governors will make the final selection.

MU Campus Community Mobilizes to Help Flood Victims

When severe flooding devastated North Central Pennsylvania and Southern New York in early September, the Mansfield University campus community mobilized to help in the recovery.

Dubbed "The Mountie Family Recovery Effort," money and supplies were collected from on campus and in the Mansfield community and groups of students, faculty and staff put "boots on the ground" in several areas to help with the clean-up efforts.

Homecoming 2011

Alumni, family and friends returned to Mansfield to celebrate Homecoming 2011 on October 7-8. This year's theme was "Paint the Town Red & Black."

Hitting the High Notes

"The Spirit & The Pride of Pennsylvania" Mansfield University Marching Band will perform during the 2012 Summer Olympics in London. The trip, tentatively set for August 1-9, will also include the opportunity for several other MU ensembles to perform.

Delta Zetas Raise Funds to Advance Jacobson Legacy

Delta Zeta alumni from the '70s and 80s, who gather each summer along Penn's Creek in Union County, raised $500 during their most recent reunion for the Karen Jacobson Scholarship Fund, named in honor of their sorority college chapter director who died in January after nearly 40 years of service to the Iota Theta chapter.

Seventeen alumni attended the retreat in Millmont, hosted annually by Amy Kelchner '79, and participated in a Chinese auction that the group will now make a regular feature of their summer reunion.

Three Strikes Against Terror; Soufan's Career Captured in Bestseller

by Dennis Miller

As the graduating senior walked across the Mansfield University stage in 1994, no one, especially himself, had an inkling that he would become probably the most successful anti-terrorist agent in FBI history, retire, create an international security firm and coauthor a bestselling book.

All before the age of 40.

In The Black Banners: The Inside Story of 9/11 and the War Against al-Qaeda, Ali Soufan recounts that his VP for Student Affairs Joe Maresco suggested he apply to the FBI after graduation. He followed the advice, not sure he was serious, and was surprised when he was accepted. His talents were soon recognized by FBI officials. When the USS Cole was bombed in October 2000, Soufan was assigned to the investigation team.

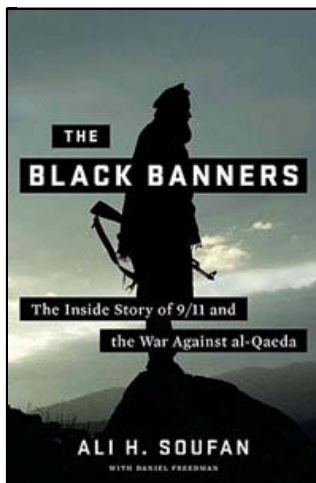

The incident was an opening round of terrorist attacks masterminded by the then unknown Osama bin Laden.

Though still in his 20's, Soufan had already developed an eye for detail, overlooking nothing and working until he dropped. As a Lebanese American, he spoke the Arab language, practiced the Muslim faith and understood Middle East culture.

During one investigation Soufan found a box of papers that the CIA had overlooked or deemed not important. He studied the contents that turned out to have important leads to key terrorist operations. The young field agent inadvertently embarrassed the CIA.

As terrorist attacks continued, Soufan became increasingly important in the investigations. He interrogated captured terrorists, and in most cases extracted valuable information that often enabled officials to disrupt a planned attack. Soufan feels strongly that the 9/11 attacks could have been averted had the CIA shared certain pieces of information with him. However, they consistently denied cooperation.

Packed with behind-the-scenes detail, The Black Banners describes Soufan's travels around the world to hole-in-the-wall safe houses where he matches wits with, and almost always gets information from many of Al Qaeda's leading terrorists.

Underneath are the clashes between the FBI and CIA, and with the Bush Administration.

Soufan brings us with him as he interrogates terrorists and in doing so transforms one-dimensional stereotypes into humans with details of their personalities, education, their weaknesses and health problems.

Even though his former boss and friend John O'Neill died in the Twin Towers and Soufan remained enraged that anyone would attack and kill innocent people, he put his feelings aside and treated terror suspects with respect, knowing he was playing "mental poker" with them, and nearly always having the winning hand because he had studied and knew his enemy.

When the CIA hired a contractor to apply "enhanced interrogation techniques (EHI)," Soufan and others protested. The CIA continued. By now, Soufan commanded enough respect in the FBI that he took his complaints up a couple levels. The answer: the EHI orders came from the White House.

Soufan is not shy about blasting Deputy Secretary of Defense Paul Wolfowitz and other Bush administration officials who he says ignored the Constitution in favor of EHI.

Soufan resigned in 2005, partly in protest of the torture, partly just weary. He had spent years combating three forces: al-Qaeda, the CIA and Bush administration.

In 2009 he went public with his insistence that enhanced interrogation techniques are useless and un-American. He created a firestorm of controversy and was asked to testify on the Senate Judicial Committee hearing on torture.

In the end, he created his own firm, The Soufan Group. He had his strength back. His sense of honor and his integrity had never left.

In his book he downplays the fact that he was a target of various groups, that he and his team had to move often because of death threats. Up until 2011 Soufan, for safety reasons, had never allowed a photo of him to be used. When he testified before the Senate it was from behind a curtain.

That changed in 2011 when Soufan became the most recognizable FBI agent since Elliot Ness. He was featured on 60 Minutes and Frontline, and appeared on such talk shows as the Colbert Report where he said, "I do not like to discriminate against terrorists based on nationality. If you declare war on the United States, and you want to kill us, we're going to kill you first. Period."

No one yet has assessed Soufan's importance in the U.S. and the world.

If he didn't invent his "you catch more flies with honey than vinegar" interrogation techniques, he certainly perfected them and the FBI now teaches the "Ali Soufan Method."

The media grabbed its usual sound bite moments chose a few quickly digestible examples from the book but no one has read it and returned and said: "This man, born in Lebanon, came to the U.S. as a child, attended a small, rural public university and went on to become probably the most effective counter terror agent in history. Through his efforts several attacks were averted and thousands of lives were saved. He took on the CIA, the Department of Defense and a presidential administration to defend the U.S. Constitution."

Coming full circle, Soufan tells us that during the early 90's his hobby was following the then unknown bin Laden and the infant Al Qaeda. Then, for 10 years, it was his life's mission to help dismantle the increasingly destructive group. And now, with his own international security firm, "countering propaganda and rhetoric" of terrorist organizations has become his new hobby.

That's comforting, for America and the world.

Author's note: Ali Soufan has generously credited Mansfield University in preparing him for his incredible career. For that the university is grateful. As an MU staff member and alumnus I know I speak for a lot of folks in the MU family when I say we're very proud of Ali for his courage, his sense of justice and all he has done for America and the world. He is, in every way, a true American.

Allan J. Golden Named Interim President

The Board of Governors of the Pennsylvania State System of Higher Education (PASSHE) appointed Allan J. Golden interim president of Mansfield University, effective December 18.

Golden, who has been interim vice president for finance and administration at Mansfield since February, 2010 will serve as interim president until a permanent president is hired. A search committee will be appointed by the university's Council of Trustees to identify and interview potential candidates. The Board of Governors will make the final selection.

"I am confident Dr. Golden will provide excellent leadership to Mansfield University," Board of Governors Vice Chairman Aaron A. Walton said. "He is familiar with the institution, and with PASSHE, having a long tenure with the State System. That experience will be essential as he guides the university during this period of transition."

Maravene Loeschke, who has served as president of MU since July 2006, announced in September that she would leave the university at the end of the fall semester to become president of Towson University in Maryland, her alma mater.

Golden spent nearly 28 years as a senior administrator at California University of Pennsylvania before retiring in late 2009. He came to Cal U. as vice president for administrative affairs after serving as vice president for administration and finance at Essex County College in Newark, New Jersey.

He previously served as an assistant dean of business affairs at Baruch College of the City University of New York (CUNY), executive assistant to the vice chancellor for administration at CUNY and as assistant to the dean of administration at Hostos Community College. Golden began his professional career as a middle and high school social studies and English teacher.

He holds a bachelor's degree in American history and government and a master's degree in social studies, both from Fairleigh Dickinson University, and a Ph.D. in higher education administration from New York University.

MU Campus Community Mobilizes to Help Flood Victims

When severe flooding devastated North Central Pennsylvania and Southern New York in early September, the Mansfield University campus community mobilized to help in the recovery.

Dubbed "The Mountie Family Recovery Effort," money and supplies were collected from on campus and in the Mansfield community and groups of students, faculty and staff put "boots on the ground" in several areas to help with the clean-up efforts.

Assistant Director of Admissions Dave Empet '03 M '07 helped coordinate the efforts. After spending a day in the Hills Grove and Forksville areas of Pennsylvania, he said, "You look around here and it's just complete devastation. By the end of the day you hope to make a bit of a difference and put some smiles back on faces."

"This has affected many members of our campus family," Kris Dumschat, chair of the Student Government Association (SGA) Committee of Finance, said.

"People we know, our friends, have been flooded out and we want to help them and everyone else who has been affected."

Vengeance To Benefit Students

They murder her husband, rape her and leave her for dead. She survives and seeks out a retired bounty hunter, Peter Clawson, to teach her how to use weapons and how to fight. She forces her way into a man's world of violence, finding the physical and spiritual strength to exact revenge.

This is Miller's second novel. The Perfect Song was published in 2004. All profits from the books are put into a scholarship fund for future MU students.

You can read the first chapter for free on Miller's blog at www.onewoman'svengeance.com

Miller, a 1971 graduate, has been PR director at MU since 1980.

Delta Zetas Raise Funds to Advance Jacobson Legacy

Delta Zeta alumni from the '70s and 80s, who gather each summer along Penn's Creek in Union County, raised $500 during their most recent reunion for the Karen Jacobson Scholarship Fund, named in honor of their sorority college chapter director who died in January after nearly 40 years of service to the Iota Theta chapter.

Seventeen alumni attended the retreat in Millmont, hosted annually by Amy Kelchner '79, and participated in a Chinese auction that the group will now make a regular feature of their summer reunion.

"Karen Jacobson was Iota Theta," Kelchner said. "She kept the sorority running, which is a time-consuming and difficult challenge. Imagine volunteering hours and hours each and every week for nearly 40 years to an organization while, at the same time, building a successful career and volunteering for other community organizations. That is quite a commitment and accomplishment."

Jacobson '69, was the 2009 Elsie Burke Service Award winner and best remembered as a stalwart proponent of sorority life who championed Delta Zeta service and fund-raising projects and the achievements of the young women who entered the sisterhood.

"When we were in college, I think we took her contribution somewhat for granted," says Kelchner. "It's only after we left school and began our own busy lives did we appreciate her dedication and love for the hundreds of girls who joined the sorority over her years."

The group invites all Delta Zeta alumni to support the Fund in honor of "Mrs. J."

"You don't have to have a reunion or plan an auction to make a difference," said Linda Roberts Miller '76, who coordinated the auction. "The important thing to do is write a check in remembrance of a woman who made a lasting impression on our college lives."

The Suite Life Has Arrived

The biggest move in Mansfield University history took place January 19-21, as students moved into the new residence halls, Oak and Hickory Manor.

Six hundred students and their families, assisted by an army of staff, faculty and student volunteers, lugged more than 120 tons of belongings into their new campus homes over the three day move-in period before the beginning of the spring semester.

"We've faced some challenges getting to this day, but it's very exciting to be here and realize our goal," Chuck Colby, associate vice president for Residence Life, said.

"It's very exciting" Anita Pfleegor, a junior Biology major from Milton, PA, said. "It's all new and beautiful. It's exciting to have my own room and a private bathroom."

The $38 million dollar project is at the south end of campus. It was financed by the Mansfield Auxiliary Corporation (MAC) in cooperation with Mansfield University and is the first of a three phase-project to replace all residence halls on campus. MAC has contracted with the University to oversee the daily operation of the new residence halls.

"We're extremely pleased with the opening of the new residence halls," MAC President David Cummings said. "A lot of individuals dedicated many long, hard, volunteer hours in the development of these buildings, and seeing students moving in as scheduled is a great reward to us. We are certain that the students living in these residence halls will find it to be a unique experience in quality student living unmatched by any other institution in the State System. We are grateful for everyone connected to this project."

MAC is a 501(c)3 limited liability corporation comprised of Mansfield area business leaders and ex-officio members of the MU administration. The new residence halls were formally dedicated with a ribbon cutting ceremony on February 21.

Representatives of MAC and MU gathered with students and staff, representatives of state, county and borough government, the Pennsylvania State System of Higher Education and many others for the ceremony.

State Representative Matt Baker was among those praising the MAC Board and all involved in creating the first new student housing at Mansfield since 1976.

"This public-private collaboration and partnership is outstanding and I want to congratulate everyone on a job well done," Baker said.

"I'm really honored to be a Mountie, especially on days like this," Student Government Association President Thomas Thornton told the gathering. "We have everyone coming together and working together for a common goal, the benefit of our students."

"This is a great day for Mansfield University," Interim President Allan Golden said. "These two residence halls are beautiful and an important step in the revitalization of the university."

Marcellus Institute Created

Dr. Allan Golden, interim president of Mansfield University, has announced the formation of The Marcellus Institute at Mansfield University, An Academic/Shale Gas Partnership.

"The Institute, in conjunction with our core programs and mission, will strengthen, enhance, and sustain the long-term viability of the University," Golden said.

He said that the Institute will work with all segments of the gas industry to help meet the educational needs of employees as well as developing academic programs to prepare MU students for careers in the field.

"The sustainability of the tremendous opportunities offered from shale gas development is dependent on meeting the educational and training needs of our first-class workforce," Pennsylvania Governor Tom Corbett said. "I applaud Mansfield University and its partners for launching this exciting new Institute."

Lindsey Sikorski has been named interim director of the Institute. Sikorski previously served as director of Community Relations at the university.

"Lindsey's past involvement, skill, and experience leading workforce development initiatives as well as her current relationship with industry and involvement with the ShaleNET (workforce) grant program make her an ideal candidate for this position," Golden said. He added that the SeaTrax safety training program taught on campus and coordinated through Sikorski's department has now trained almost 5,000 gas and oil workers for Shell from areas throughout the U.S.

State Representative Matt Baker who helped spearhead the Institute's creation, said, "Thank you also for all the hard work and vision of Mansfield University to offer new and exciting educational opportunities for students preparing to work in the energy industry. It makes great sense that Mansfield University should be the pre-eminent state university that provides students with exceptional and qualified educational credentials to enter high paying jobs locally and throughout the region and Commonwealth since Tioga and Bradford Counties are the top two counties in Pennsylvania with the most Marcellus natural gas wells in the state."

"I am pleased that Mansfield University is working with leaders of the Marcellus Shale industry to provide necessary educational programs to further advance the job opportunities in this field," Senator Joe Scarnati stated. "Without question, this is of great benefit to the working families and job creators in this region."

The Institute is being formed at the same time the university is proposing new associate and bachelor's degree programs that will prepare graduates for the fast growing gas and gas-related industries, Golden said.

"The Institute," Baker added "compliments the already highly successful Geography/Geology Department whose graduates have been moving directly into full employment with the gas industry."

"These proposed programs and the Marcellus Shale Institute are a direct response to industry needs," Golden said. "As a public liberal arts institution in the heart of Marcellus Shale, Mansfield University is in a unique position to continue to develop programs that prepare our students for a variety of careers in this burgeoning industry."

Two New Vice Presidents Named

Two new vice presidents joined the Mansfield University administration in January.

Daniel DoBell was named vice president for Finance & Administration and James Parker was named vice president of Student Affairs.

DoBell comes to Mansfield after two years as vice president for Administration & Finance at Texarkana College in Texas. Prior to that he spent eight years as executive director of the University of Illinois Research Park. DoBell worked at the Iowa State University Research Park as business director and the Iowa State Research Foundation as business manager before going to Illinois. He holds a Ph.D from Illinois and a master's and bachelor's degree from Iowa State.

Parker comes to MU after two years at South Dakota. Prior to that he spent seven years at Texas Christian University (TCU), first as assistant dean of campus life and then as director of student activities. He began his career at the University of Oklahoma, holding a number of positions in student life during four years there. Parker holds a Ph.D from TCU and a master's and bachelor's degree from Oklahoma.

Fall Commencement Celebrated

Three hundred and twenty-two students received degrees at Mansfield University's 147th Commencement on December 17 in Decker Gymnasium.

Dr. Renee Haynesworth '94 was the speaker. She is a pediatrician in the Fairfax, VA area.

"I would implore you to appreciate the gift that you've been able to receive in the Mansfield University education," she said. "I have often reflected on my time at Mansfield and greatly appreciated the countless experiences that enabled me to grow. My four years here fostered my confidence and sense of self."

In addition to operating her own private practice, Haynesworth also serves her community by practicing at Child Health Associates in Warrenton, VA, where she is starting the first "Reach Out and Read" program in Fauquier County to improve literacy of at-risk pre-school children. She also provides care for families in Spanish, which she learned during her residency.

"One of the best ways that you can positively impact your world is to make a point to give back," she told the graduates. "Your service as a volunteer in your field can help the future generations. Whatever you end up doing, or wherever you live, please take a few hours of your time on a regular basis to positively impact your world through service."

To see Haynesworth's speech, go to youtube.com/mansfielduniversity

Lynn Pifer, English professor and director of the Frederick Douglass Institute at MU, was presented with the Diversity Ally Award. The award is presented to an individual who demonstrates an exceptional commitment to diversity and cultural awareness and who celebrates individuality and uniqueness.

Also during Commencement, Vice-Chair Lewis Lee '62 spoke on behalf of the Council of Trustees, Diana Rizzo Petlock '04, Alumni Association Board member, gave the alumni greeting and President Adam Simmonds, a graduating senior himself, represented the Student Government Association. The MU Brass Band, conducted by Nathan Rinnert, provided musical accompaniment for the event.

Bob Bridgeman Memorial Run Set

The 12th annual Bob Bridgman 5K Memorial Run will be held on Monday, May 28, 8:30 a.m. at Shaute Field. Note the change in site, which is due to renovations at Karl Van Norman Field/Bob Maxon Track.

A kids' fun run will be held while the runners are out on the course.

Bridgeman, a math professor at MU for 36 years, began long distance running in 1976 and brought to the sport the integrity he took everywhere he went. He loved the sport and the people who participated. He also loved our community and did much to improve it.

The Bob Bridgman 5K Memorial Run honors his memory by returning all proceeds from this race to the Mansfield area. Last year the organizations that benefited were: MU Cross Country, MHS Cross Country, the Bob Bridgman Memorial Scholarship Fund at MU, the Second Chance Animal Sanctuaries, and the Mansfield Firemen's Ambulance Association. In addition, five $100 scholarships were awarded to each graduating MHS senior who ran cross country.

The Bob Bridgman Scholarship is awarded to an incoming freshman who ranks in the top 25 percent of their high school class, has a minimum SAT score of 1000 and demonstrates the highest traits of leadership, citizenship and character, and shows evidence of providing service to people or animals and a willingness and desire to continue to do so in the future.

A Summer of Change

Changes and improvements are a constant on virtually every college campus.

But anyone returning to Mansfield University this fall, even those who have only been gone since the end of the spring semester, may be surprised by the sheer number of changes that have occurred over the summer.

Cedarcrest and Hemlock Manors are gone, demolished to make way for the next phase of new residence hall construction.

Grant Science Center is undergoing major renovations, some that will be completed by the beginning of the new academic year, some that will continue during the year--with special efforts being made to minimize the impact on students and faculty, and others will be completed next summer.

Robert T. Maxson Track at Karl Van Norman Field this summer has been getting its most extensive upgrade since the 1960s. A new eight-lane track has been installed and new throwing and jumping areas have been put in place.

At the Council of Trustees meeting in May, plans to install artificial turf and lights at Van Norman Field were announced with that work expected to take place next summer.

"This will be the finest facility of its kind in Tioga County and beyond," James Parker, vice president for Student affairs, said. "It's something the university and community will both take great pride in, and make great use of, for many years to come."

Construction of the new water treatment plant continues. It should be online in January of next year.

There is a new parking lot for commuter students next to Allen Hall.

Two classrooms in Retan Center have been converted to one large lecture hall and classrooms in Elliot Hall and Butler Center have been renovated.

One practice room in Butler Center has been completely renovated. It will be used as a recording studio and small recital hall, while continuing to serve as a classroom.

"That project and work on several others around campus are being done by MU personnel at a significant savings to the University," Daniel DoBell, Vice President for Finance and Administration, said. "Scott Williams (Physical Plant director) and his team are doing great work."

The changes won't stop this summer. Funds for the renovation of Straughn Hall have been appropriated. Eckles Architecture & Engineering, Inc., the firm that oversaw the North Hall restoration, has been awarded the contract.

"These investments are being made to improve and grow the University," Interim President Allan Golden said. "MU is alive and well; it's active; it's growing."

Alumni Weekend 2012

More than 300 alumni, family and friends returned to Mansfield University for Alumni Weekend 2012 on June 8-9.

The Class of 1962, celebrating its 50th anniversary, was this year's honored guests for alumni weekend. Forty one members of the class returned to MU and were recognized at a luncheon, along with all classes with years ending in two and seven, retired faculty, administrators and staff. The Class of '62 endowed a scholarship fund as a special gift to the University.

Also honored at the luncheon were this year's Society of Honors award winners.

David M. Wennergren '80 received the Alumni Citation Award. Carol Himmelreich Brann '60 was presented with the Elsie Burke Service Award. Larry M. Hake '87, M '96 was named this year's Outstanding Young Alumni. The Distinguished Educator Award was presented to James Ploskonka '83.

"It has been wonderful meeting so many of you over the last day and a half," Interim President Allan Golden told the luncheon gathering. "I've been in the PASSHE system for over 30 years and have not had the pleasure of spending such quality time with alumni. You are the backbone of our institution. You give us history, memories, and a sense of pride that no one else can provide. I am glad to have had the opportunity to be part of alumni weekend as your interim president."

After describing several of the improvements and projects that are, or soon will be, taking place on campus, Golden concluded by saying, "MU is alive and well; it's active; it's growing; and hopefully it's an institution that you are proud to call your alma mater."

The weekend also featured several social events--offering opportunities to renew acquaintances and make new ones, as well as tours of campus, a special gathering for alumni of Sigma Tau Gamma and a golf tournament at Corey Creek Golf Club, which serves as a fundraiser for athletic scholarships. The team of Matt Baker, Ken Gaudi, Erick Coolidge and Jack Showers were this year's winners.

Concert Choir Brings Home Gold from World Choir Games

The Mansfield University Concert Choir won three Gold Medals at the World Choir Games in Cincinnati, OH July 4-8.

The MU Chorus was awarded a Gold Medal in the Folklore category, placing fourth among 25 choirs and ranking just behind the top choir from Venezuela and two choirs from China, and second among 12 choirs from around the world in the Mixed Youth Choir category, just behind the champion from China. In the Musica Sacra division, the Concert Choir was among only 12 of 28 choirs competing in this category to achieve the ranking of Gold.

“The competition was particularly intense this year with the judges awarding more Bronze and Silver rankings than ever before,” MU Director Peggy Dettwiler said. “To receive a Gold Medal in a championship round, a choir must achieve at least 80 of 100 points accumulated from seven judges on an international jury.”

Spring Commencement Celebrated

Four hundred and twelve students received degrees at MU's 147th Commencement on May, 12.

Interim President Allan Golden told the graduates, "In my 40 plus year career in higher education, this is my first opportunity to stand before a graduating class. I cherish this moment especially since it's occurring at Mansfield University. In my 16 months here, first as Interim Vice President for Finance and Administration and now as Interim President, I have developed a deep affection for Mansfield. I know you will cherish the moment as a graduate."

Harold C. Shields, principal in Harold C. Shields HR Consulting, LLC and a member of the Pennsylvania State System of Higher Education Board of Governors, was the speaker. With a theme of leadership, Shields recounted learning early on from his grandmother, uncles and others about what it truly means to be a leader.

"You can boil all the leadership catch-phrases and buzz-words down to three simple phrases, sort of like the sap from the maple tree is boiled to make syrup," he said. "... you must, first imagine it, second, communicate it, and third, get 'er done! That may be a slight over-simplification. It takes much more than reading or hearing about leadership, or even speaking the word leadership, or being anointed as a leader, to be an effective one."

To see Shields' entire speech, go to youtube.com/mansfielduniversity

Amanda Ward of Troy, PA was named this year's Outstanding Senior. Ward graduated with a Bachelor of Arts in History and Political Science. She worked two jobs while pursuing her degree; one as a supplemental instructor on campus and the other as a supervisor at the Martha Lloyd Community Services Home for developmentally challenged adults. Ward plans on pursuing a Ph.D. program in Russian history.

Graduation Celebration

Before they walked across the stage to receive their diplomas, Mansfield University's newest graduates were encouraged to cherish the bond they have with each other and their soon-to-be alma mater and explore the opportunities they've been prepared for.

Sheri Beam was the guest speaker for the annual Graduation Celebration held on May 11.

Beam, who earned her Bachelor's degree in 1971, manages projects for Research Triangle International's Office of Strategic Analysis, Communications and Business at the NASA Research Center in Hampton, VA.

"The years you spent here not only give you a degree, it's going to give you a phenomenal foundation for where you go from here," Beam told the graduates.

Using a kaleidoscope as a metaphor on how to see, deal with, and be ready for change, Beam said, "Opportunities are out there, take advantage of them and, when need be, use your kaleidoscope."

The Graduation Celebration brings together graduates and university administration, faculty and staff on the day before Commencement. Special recognition is given to the candidates for outstanding senior.

Alumni Association President Amy Dupree Brooks '80 welcomed the graduates to the ranks of MU alumni and urged them to stay connected with their soon to-be alma mater.

The event is made possible by the support of Professors Lee and Kathy Wright '82, The MU Alumni Association, The Office of the Provost, The Association of Pennsylvania State College & University Faculties (AFSCUF), and The American Federation of State, County & Municipal Workers (AFSCME).

New Academic Programs Approved

The Board of Governors of the Pennsylvania State System of Higher Education (PASSHE) approved two new degree programs; the Associate of Applied Science in Natural Gas Production and Services and the Bachelor of Science in Safety Management, at MU on June 28. Both programs will be offered beginning this fall.

“We are very grateful to the Board of Governors for their support of our program initiatives as evidenced by their approval of two new academic programs,” MU Interim President Allan Golden said. “These programs will enable Mansfield University to help meet the workforce development needs of our region while expanding career opportunities for our students.”

The new degree in Natural Gas Production and Services is designed to prepare graduates for various career paths in the natural gas industry. The five concentrations within the program—permitting and inspection specialist, mud logging/geology specialist, environmental specialist, geographic information systems specialist and safety management specialist—have been identified by industry employers as well as major corporations in the Northern Tier of PA as meeting a critical need. The program is closely aligned with the emerging and growing careers in the drilling industry as outlined by the Pennsylvania Independent Oil and Gas Association.

Mansfield’s program in Safety Management is designed to prepare graduates for the expanding Marcellus Shale industry and associated energy businesses that need safety professionals. It also will prepare graduates for a range of occupational health and safety positions in other industries, both regionally and globally.

The state Department of Environmental Protection has indicated a strong demand for safety workers, as has the PA Statewide Marcellus Workforce Needs Assessment.

Both new programs were developed in close collaboration with industry as part of its newly established Marcellus Institute at Mansfield University.

“Mansfield University is a public liberal arts institution,” Golden said. “We’re in the heart of Marcellus Shale, and that puts us in the unique position to continue to fulfill our mission, serving not only our area but the entire Commonwealth.”

Kaitlyn McBride Memorial Scholarship Established

The Mansfield University Women's Soccer Team and the Mansfield University Foundation have established the Kaitlyn McBride Memorial Scholarship in memory of "Mic," as she was known to her friends, who passed away from injuries suffered in a car accident in her hometown of Washingtonville, NY on June 4, 2012.

McBride would have returned for her final semester of classes this fall, playing her last season on soccer and graduating in December with a degree in Communication.

"Mic was not able to play her final season here at Mansfield or complete her degree, but by establishing this endowed scholarship, she will remain a part of the university and the women's soccer team forever," Head Soccer Coach Tim Dempsey said. Mic had a great passion for soccer and this is a truly fitting way to honor that love and passion."

The Women's Soccer Team has made a commitment to match all Alumni donations made up to a total of $2500 through September 2012.

To donate, go to gomounties.com/sports/2012/6/28/WSOC_0628123555.aspx?id=167 or mail your donation to the Mansfield University Foundation, North Hall, Room 524, Mansfield University, Mansfield, PA 16933
